I was raised and reside on our family farm, located just south of Chatham. With my family, wife Sheila, daughters Kate & Lauren and son Ryan we farm approximately 1000 acres growing wheat, soybeans, commercial corn, seed corn and machine harvest cucumbers. Past crops and enterprises included organic crops (corn, soybeans & tomatoes) processing tomatoes, peas, and being in the cattle business for a large part of my life.

Agriculture requires advocates and I have taken on the challenge since graduating at the University of Guelph. From offshore labour, agricorp issues, drainage problems and cattle concerns, I have lobbied both provincial and federal governments. In earlier years, my time was spent pushing for the renewable fuels standards and the development of the ethanol industry. Today, more than ever, agriculture is under continuous pressure from Canada / US trade & tariffs, environmental concerns, and hydro and gas line influence on our valuable land. Agriculture and agribusiness are an extremely important part of our economy and I am up to the challenge continually working as a provincial director with the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.
